INTRODUCTION

1. In schools across New York City (NYC), old fluorescent lighting ballasts are leaking poly-chlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), highly toxic man-made compounds that damage the nervous, immune, and endocrine systems and cause cancer. These leaks constitute clear violations of the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC §§2601, et seq. (TSCA). By this TSCA citizen's action, plaintiff New York Communities for Change (NYCC), acting on behalf of its members who are parents of NYC schoolchildren, seeks the prompt removal from NYC schools of PCB-leaking light ballasts and of lighting fixtures that have been contaminated by such ballasts. The City has proposed to replace the lighting in question over ten years, an unacceptably lax timeframe given the patent illegality of the leaks and the significant risks they pose to the health of children across the City.

JURISDICTION, VENUE, and NOTICE

- 2. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction under 28 USC §1331 because the instant claim is brought pursuant to TSCA, a federal statute.
- 3. Venue is appropriate in this district under 28 USC §1391(b)(2) and 15 USC §2619(a) because a substantial number of the violations to be remedied are located within it.
- 4. On April 13, 2011, as required by 15 USC §2619(b)(1)(A), plaintiff gave notice to the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and to the defendants, Department of Education (DOE) and the School Construction Authority (SCA), of its intent to sue to end defendants' violations of TSCA, 15 USC §2605(e)(2)(A), throughout New York City public schools.

5. The statutorily mandated notice period of 60 days has passed, and neither EPA nor the Department of Justice has commenced any proceeding that would affect plaintiff's right to initiate litigation under 15 USC §2619(b)(1)(B).

PARTIES

- NYCC is a coalition of working families in low and moderate income communities fighting for social and economic justice, including access to quality schools, throughout New York State.
- 7. Defendant DOE is a city-wide agency responsible for managing NYC's public schools.
- 8. Defendant SCA is a city-wide agency responsible for managing NYC school construction and renovation projects.

LEGAL BACKGROUND

- 9. TSCA was passed in 1977 to regulate hazardous chemicals. In particular, it banned PCB production and sales on a staggered schedule while permitting limited ongoing use of existing PCBs under stringent conditions, as detailed below.
- 10. TSCA bans the use, manufacture, processing, and distribution in commerce of PCBs in any manner other than a "totally enclosed manner" as of January 1, 1978; their manufacture in any manner as of January 1, 1979; and their processing or distribution in commerce in any manner as of June 1, 1979. 15 USC §2605(e)(2)(A); 15 USC §2605(e)(3)(A). Thus, it is currently unlawful to use PCBs in any manner other than a "totally enclosed manner".

- 11. TSCA's implementing regulations define a "totally enclosed manner" as "any manner that will ensure no exposure of human beings or the environment to any concentration of PCBs." 40 CFR §761.3.
- 12. In addition to imposing this limit on PCB use, the TSCA regulations circumscribe methods of PCB disposal: "Any person storing or disposing of PCB waste must do so in accordance with subpart D [the disposal regulations.]" 40 CFR §761.50. Any noncompliant disposal is improper and unlawful.
- 13. A PCB leak is defined as a "disposal" under the TSCA regulations: "Disposal means intentionally or accidentally to discard, throw away, or otherwise complete or terminate the useful life of PCBs and PCB items. Disposal includes spills, leaks, and other uncontrolled discharges of PCBs…" 40 CFR §761.3.
- 14. In general, and for the purposes of this case, the prohibitions on both uses of PCBs in a manner other than a totally enclosed manner and improper disposals of PCBs apply to concentrations of PCBs of 50 ppm or greater. When this complaint refers to a lighting ballast leaking PCBs, it means a lighting ballast leaking a fluid with a concentration of PCBs at or above the 50ppm threshold.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

(A) The toxicity of PCBs

- 15. PCBs are among the most poisonous man-made compounds. They are the only chemicals to be banned outright by TSCA.
- 16. In TSCA's implementing regulations, EPA emphasized the danger of PCBs:
 "[T]he manufacture, processing, and distribution in commerce of PCBs at concentrations of 50 [parts per million (ppm)] or greater present an unreasonable risk of injury to health...This finding is based on the well documented human health and environmental hazard of PCB exposure... In addition...any exposure of human beings or the environment to PCBs, as measured or detected by any scientifically acceptable analytical method, may be significant..." 40 CFR §761.20 (emphases added).

- 17. PCBs are potent endocrine disruptors that also pose significant risks to the human immune and nervous systems, even at low exposure levels.
- 18. PCB exposure is associated with, inter alia, permanently depressed IQ, diabetes, heart disease, liver disease, asthma, hormonal disturbance, and childhood leukemia.
- 19. PCBs have been declared to be probable human carcinogens by numerous agencies, including the National Toxicology Program of the National Institutes of Health.
- 20. PCBs are developmental toxins; that is, after controlling for body weight and blood volume, they pose disproportionately high risks to the physical and cognitive health of children.
- 21. PCB exposure also poses disproportionately high risks to the long-term reproductive health of girls and young women.
- 22. PCBs accumulate in the human body. Chronic exposure to even low levels of PCBs increases PCB body burdens and attendant health risks over time.

(B) PCBs and T12 fluorescent lighting

23. PCBs were first manufactured in the United States in 1929. Their primary application, until they were banned in 1978, was as electrical insulators.

- 24. Starting in mid-century and up until the ban, many fluorescent lighting fixtures were manufactured with ballasts that incorporated small PCB-containing capacitors.¹
- 25. The lighting fixtures made with PCB ballasts included fluorescent lighting fixtures called "T12" fixtures. ²
- 26. T12 lighting, introduced at the 1939 World's Fair, was the first fluorescent lighting technology. It is pre-electronic, highly energy-inefficient, and universally regarded as obsolete. The United States Department of Energy has phased out T12 technology.
- 27. According to EPA, the costs of replacing T12 lighting are generally amortized over two to seven years due to the magnitude of consequent energy savings. For reference, the Metropolitan Transit Authority reduced energy usage by 26% in switching from T12 lighting to modern fluorescent lighting. In some cases, replacing T12 fixtures with more energy-efficient models results in as much as a 40% reduction in energy usage.

(C) The discovery of leaking T12 fixtures in NYC schools

- 28. The PCB lighting problem was discovered in the midst of a community campaign to address PCBs in caulk in schools.
- 29. PCBs were used as plasticizers in construction materials as well as insulators in capacitors and other electrical equipment before they were banned. PCBs spontaneously volatilize out of caulk, paint, and the other construction materials in which they were once used.
- 30. In April 2008, a survey of NYC schools conducted by the Daily News found that in six of nine schools from which window-frame caulking samples had been taken, PCBs were

Within lighting nomenclature, "T" indicates a tubular bulb and the number following the "T" expresses the tubular bulb's diarneter in eighths of an inch; T12 lighting utilizes fluorescent tubes 1.5 inches wide.

- present at unlawful levels, in some cases levels thousands of times greater than the TSCA threshold of 50ppm.
- 31. While the lingering presence of PCBs in caulk had previously been identified as an emerging public health threat in other countries, the Daily News series on PCBs raised nascent US public awareness of the problem to a new level. The ensuing campaign by a community coalition of NYC parents led to significant additional media coverage, litigation by a Bronx mother whose child's school had been featured in the Daily News survey, and negotiations between the City and EPA. Ultimately, in January 2010, the City agreed to conduct a pilot study focusing on the presence of PCBs in caulk in NYC schools.
- 32. In August 2010, the preliminary results from this pilot study on PCBs in NYC schools were released. The results showed (a) that levels of PCB air contamination were both significant and worse than had been anticipated by most observers, in many cases well over EPA guidance thresholds for PCB air levels in schools and (b) that in at least some schools, leaking old T12 light ballasts were a significant source of PCB air contamination.
- 33. The unexpected discovery that PCB lighting is still in use in NYC schools attracted the attention of EPA, elected officials, and the community coalition, including plaintiff NYCC. Advocacy efforts ensued, as did negotiations between EPA and the City.
- 34. As of December 2010, in a letter to EPA, the DOE calculated that 772 NYC schools contained as many as 564,000 T12 fixtures, which the letter described as "very likely to contain PCB ballasts." Attached to the letter was a list of the 772 schools, many of which are located within this judicial district. December 1, 2010 Letter of DOE Deputy

- Chancellor Kathleen Grimm to EPA Regional Administrator Judith Enck (attached as Exhibit A).
- 35. In the December 1, 2010 letter, DOE noted that as its survey of lighting in NYC schools continued, the number of buildings known to contain T12 fixtures would likely increase.
 Ex. A.

(D) The prevalence of PCB leaks in NYC schools

- 36. Because the PCB lighting fixtures in NYC schools all date from before TSCA's 1978 ban on PCBs, they are increasingly subject to failure and leakage.
- 37. In fact, EPA conducted classroom spot inspections at seven NYC schools in January and February 2011, and found T12 ballasts leaking PCBs in every school inspected, and in 63 of the 68 classrooms and other school spaces inspected.
- 38. On February 23, 2011, the City announced a plan to replace T12 lighting in NYC schools within ten years.
- 39. Following the EPA inspections and the City's announcement, 41 of 51 NYC Council Members wrote a letter to EPA Regional Administrator Judith Enck asking that PCB lighting be replaced within two years rather than the City's proposed timeframe of ten years. March 11, 2011 Letter of 41 NYC Council Members to EPA Regional Administrator Enck (attached as Exhibit B).
- 40. In her response to the 41 City Council Members, Ms. Enck stated that "EPA inspections indicate there is a prevalence of leaking PCB ballasts in the City's school system." April 8, 2011 Letter of EPA Regional Administrator Judith Enck to Council Member Daniel Dromm (attached as Exhibit C).

41. The prevalence of PCB-leaking lighting in NYC schools poses serious health risks to the children of NYCC members across the city.

(E) Exposure pathways

- 42. PCBs that leak from lighting ballasts can enter children's bodies through three pathways: inhalation, touch, and oral ingestion.
- 43. Inhalation is likely the predominant PCB exposure pathway in most classrooms with old T12 lighting. In various contexts, PCBs tend to volatilize spontaneously into air. In the context of T12 lighting, because the T12 fixtures are not airtight, when PCBs leak from a capacitor into the interior of the fixture housing it, they contaminate classroom air.
- 44. In some instances, PCB ballast oil leaks entirely out of the fixture and onto surfaces below. Because PCBs readily penetrate most solids, including human skin, leakage that exits the fixture poses the risk of exposure through touch. In addition, hand-to-mouth behaviors can result in oral PCB ingestion in these circumstances.
- 45. Dust that has been contaminated by volatilized PCBs can enter the body through all three means (breathing, touch, and ingestion).

CAUSE OF ACTION

- 46. All previous paragraphs are incorporated by reference.
- 47. The defendants have failed to address in a timely fashion and have no plan to address in a timely fashion many thousands of PCB leaks in light fixtures in schools across NYC.
- 48. Each of these PCB leaks violates TSCA and its implementing regulations, in that each leak constitutes (1) a use of PCBs in a manner other than a totally enclosed manner and

(2) an unauthorized disposal of PCBs. 15 §2605(e)(2)(A); 15 USC §2614(1); 40 CFR §761.3; 40 CFR §761.50 et seq.

RELIEF REQUESTED

- 49. Plaintiff NYCC requests that the Court grant the following relief:
 - A declaration that defendants are in violation of TSCA and its implementing regulations;
 - b. An order compelling defendants (1) to promptly inspect New York City schools for PCB leaking light ballasts and light ballasts likely to leak PCBs and upon identifying any such light ballasts to immediately remove and replace them, disposing of them safely; (2) to remove and dispose of all other light ballasts containing PCBs rapidly and safely; and (3) to confirm the absence of PCB air contamination following clean-up, using appropriate tests and standards;
 - c. An award of costs and fees pursuant to 15 USC §2605(c)(2); and
 - d. An award of any other relief the Court deems appropriate.

Ms. Judith Enck Regional Administrator U.S. Environmental Protection Agency 290 Broadway New York, NY 10007

Dear Ms. Enck:

Pursuant to recent discussions between EPA and the City, the Department of Educatior (DOE) conducted a survey to determine the potential number of lighting fixtures that contain pallasts with PCBs in the approximately 1250 school buildings owned or leased by DOE. The survey identifies "T12" lighting fixtures, which are very likely to contain PCB ballasts. Custodial engineers at each school conducted a visual inspection of each building to gather these data. Please note that the data contained in the survey are subject to change due to pending results from fewer than 50 buildings. In addition, it should also be noted that the presence of a T12 fixture does not, in all instances, equate to the presence of a PCB ballast. However, for purposes of this survey, it is assumed that all T12 fixtures potentially contain PCB ballasts.

As of now, we have received survey responses indicating that 772 buildings have T12 lighting fixtures (see attached spreadsheet). In these buildings there could be as many as 564,000 fixtures with PCB ballasts. Of these 772 buildings, 90 percent have at least 100 T12 lighting fixtures. In addition, roughly half of the buildings with T12 lighting fixtures were built during 1950-78 when PCB-containing building materials were legally used in the United States. The other half are buildings constructed before the PCB era, but had fluorescent lighting fixtures installed. The total number of buildings with T12 fixtures is likely to increase as we receive the outstanding survey results.

We hope you find this information responsive to your request and look forward to continuing our discussions on this issue.

THE COUNCIL
THE CITY OF NEW YORK
CITY HALL
NEW YORK, NY 10007

March 11, 2011

Judith Enck Regional Administrator U.S. Environmental Protection Agency 290 Broadway New York, NY 10007

Dear Regional Administrator Enck,

We strongly urge you to reject New York City's ten year timeframe for removing and replacing all PCB containing light ballasts and insist on a strict two year plan. It is both feasible and responsible to require that this work be completed in two years.

The project to rid New York City schools of PCB containing lighting ballasts can be accomplished with no upfront costs to the City. One contractor explained in a letter to a member of City Council that "In exchange for providing the financing needed to install the energy-saving ballasts, a private contractor is paid the amounts saved for a specified period to time." He continued, "Thereafter all of the savings are for the city." This practice is common place in green contracting and several similar arrangements would be available to the City, eliminating any financial argument against imposing a two-year timeline.

As your Agency has made clear when it announced the results of recent EPA inspections, "If a lighting ballast is leaking PCBs at above a regulatory level of 50 parts per million, it is considered an exceedance and federal law requires the immediate removal and disposal of the ballast and disposal of any PCB-contaminated materials at an EPA-approved facility." All of the schools that the EPA has inspected have had leaking light fixtures exceeding the regulatory threshold set by the Toxic Substances Control Act and it is more than likely that this trend will be found across all New York City schools with PCB contaminated ballasts. The City's ten year timeframe for removing PCB containing lighting ballasts is far from an immediate response and would leave thousands of children exposed to PCBs for years past what is necessary.

The EPA has also rightly emphasized that long-term exposure to PCBs, even at low levels, poses serious risks to human health, especially children's health. PCB exposure is associated with permanently depressed IQ, increased risk of attentional deficits, hormonal and immune disruptions, and childhood leukemia, among other serious health problems. Subjecting children and teachers to an additional eight years of exposure is unacceptable given the serious health impacts that may be caused by this increased exposure.

Leaving aside the PCB contamination, the lighting in question has been subject to a federal Department of Energy phase-out since 2005 and will soon be completely obsolete. The City will inevitably need to replace this old technology as the ballasts became illegal to make or sell last year, and the same will be true of the bulbs next year.

We sincerely commend and thank you for all you have done to advocate for the children and employees in New York City schools. A reasonable and attainable two year time frame to remove and replace these old, leaking, and dangerous light fixtures will limit children's exposure to PCBs and is the only timeframe we can endorse.

Sincerely,

Joel Rivera

UNITED STATES ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY

REGION 2 290 BROADWAY NEW YORK, NY 10007-1866

APR - 8 2011

Honorable Daniel Dromm New York City Council 250 Broadway New York, NY 10007

Dear Council Member Dromm:

Thank you for your letter of March 11, 2011 regarding polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) in New York City public schools. Your letter urges the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to reject New York City's proposal for a ten year timeframe to remove and replace all PCB-containing light ballasts, and insist on a strict two year plan. Although EPA does not have the authority to approve or disapprove the City's proposal, we are recommending that the lighting replacements be completed in no more than five years.

In January and February 2011, EPA conducted seven targeted inspections at public schools in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Staten Island and the Bronx to evaluate lighting ballasts that may contain PCBs and determine if they were leaking or had leaked in the past. Overall, 145 samples were taken of material that appeared to have leaked from lighting ballasts. Out of this total, 113 samples showed results that are above the EPA regulatory limit of 50 ppm. At each school, at least two-thirds of the samples taken showed results above the regulatory limit. At PS 53 in Staten Island and at PS 45 and PS 306 in Brooklyn, one or more samples showed results above 100,000 ppm, which means that the material sampled was 10% PCBs. At PS 306 in Brooklyn, two samples showed a result of approximately 1,000,000 ppm, or 100% PCBs, and another was 95% PCBs.

Throughout the course of our inspections, EPA recommended that New York City develop a plan for assessing and addressing leaking ballasts in its schools city-wide. On February 23, 2011, the New York City Department of Education announced its "Comprehensive Plan to Increase Energy Efficiency and Environmental Quality at Schools." The Plan calls for the removal and replacement of all PCB lighting ballasts in 772 schools over the course of ten years. The Plan is also intended to result in complete energy audits and retrofits, which are expected to reduce the City's greenhouse gas emissions by more than 200,000 metric tons per year.

EPA recognizes this plan as a step in the right direction. However, we have been consistent in saying that ten years is too long for the removal of all PCB-containing lighting fixtures throughout the school system. EPA inspections indicate that there is a prevalence of leaking PCB ballasts in the City's school system. EPA believes that the lighting fixtures should be removed from these 772 schools in no longer than five years—and that the City can and should take steps to achieve this.

I appreciate your concerns about protecting children's health and the health of all school staff. We have the opportunity to work collaboratively on this important issue. As always, if you have further questions or need additional information, please contact me at (212) 637-5000.

Sincerely,

Judith A. Enck

Regional Administrator
